

Conclusion

All four heads of the quadriceps muscles increased in volume following eight weeks of progressive resistance training.

On average, muscles increased in volume in equal proportions of their initial volume → no evidence for regional hypertrophy in volume.

The PCSA of the vastus lateralis, but not of other muscles, increased with training.